

This fall, the Washington Business Professionals of America (BPA) chapter traveled to Des Moines to attend the Fall Leadership conference. One of the highlights of the weekend was a BPA meeting and a keynote speaker, Chris Bowers, who spoke about risk taking, treating people in a positive way, self-confidence, dealing with frustration, being involved and choosing to do your best with the opportunities life presents you. BPA members are now preparing for their State Leadership conference in February where they will compete with schools from across the state in different Workplace Skills Assessments for the opportunity to qualify for the National Leadership Conference in Orlando, Florida in May!
