

In 1997, the National Education Association (NEA) kicked-off a day to celebrate reading throughout the United States. Today, we observe National Reading Month. This nationwide observance coincides with the birthday of Dr Seuss (Geisel), an American writer best known for writing children's books such as: Green Eggs and Ham, How the Grinch Stole Christmas!, and The Cat in the Hat. Stewart Elementary has had a lot of fun in March with this celebration and the theme of Dr Seuss characters/ books. One of the activities is a guessing jar that is being passed from class to class. Each student has the opportunity to guess how many goldfish crackers are in the jar. The student who guesses the closest will earn the goldfish crackers as a snack for their class. Reading is fun at Stewart Elementary!
