

Each year, Erin Riley's High School Foods class visits Jill Bader's Kindergarten classroom to decorate holiday cookies. The high school students bake the cookies and make the frosting in class. Then they bring everything over to enjoy time with the kindergarten students in decorating them together. "We had a great time", commented Jill Bader. The high school students get an opportunity to teach the elementary students something and everyone has a good time. Another plus is, the kids get to take quite a few cookies home to their families and friends!
